

Development of unique Narva-Ivangorod fortresses ensemble as a single cultural and tourist object

Narva-Ivangorod LSP6

Priority 1 Socio-economic development

Measure 1.3 Tourism development

Short summary of the project

The main problems of Narva-Ivangorod cross-border region are low competitiveness and the negative image, which is usually depicted as a depressing, peripheral area with weak socioeconomic indicators (low entrepreneurial activity, high unemployment rate, emigration of young and talented, ageing and decreasing population, low income and lack of investments). But at the same time at the Estonian – Russian border there is a unique ensemble of two fortresses of great cultural and historical value. At present the historical, cultural and tourist potential of the cross-border ensemble is not used to the full extent; moreover the fortresses are dilapidating. The main reasons for this situation are not sufficiently developed tourist infrastructure, poor condition and danger of collapsing of some fortifications. So what is important and worth doing to change the present situation is to create the conditions for safe and convenient access for tourists and visitors to the fortifications.

Moreover it is also essential from the point of view of preservation of the cultural monuments with national significance against dilapidation. Narva fortifications are the object of national importance, however Narva fortress is owned by the City Government and their conservation and reconstruction is beyond Narva strength. The mightiest bastions are Victoria, Honor and Gloria; although at present time their condition is crucial. Ivangorod fortress is owned by Russian Federation state, "Museum Agency" Leningradskaya Oblast State Budget Institution of Culture uses this object. The biggest part of the fortress's potential and capability, which could act for the tourism development purposes, is not used. To solve the problems project partners since 2006 carried out a series of preparatory works including joint strategy of development the complex of Narva and Ivangorod fortresses, feasibility studies, design projects, other preparatory works.
